

Injured Women After Reform – was founded by women lawyers and the injured women they represent.

Discrimination against women in the workplace has been legalized in California.

In some circumstances, insurance companies now legally pay less to a woman who is injured at work than to a man... for the same injury.

The Governor and the workers compensation insurance companies wrote a “reform” law that treats women as the “weaker sex”... paying them less than they pay men.

Injured Women After Reform is fighting to repeal that law... because

Women are stronger than Schwarzenegger thinks.

In 2008 a bill passed by the Legislature would have eliminated this discrimination against women in the workplace. The Governor vetoed the bill.

The California Applicants’ Attorneys Association will use all proceeds from “iWar on eBay” to fight gender discrimination and elect political leaders committed to “equality” under the law. For more information, go to www.iwaronebay.com.
